

Call For Teachers

The Chesterton Art Center is seeking instructors to teach art classes for all ages in 2019. Course work can encompass all art forms, not limited to 2D and 3D. This can include jewelry, sculpture, writing, mixed media, paper, fiber, along with the traditional drawing, painting, photography, glass, and more.

Teachers should have art instruction experience and a unique vision for future classes. All interested parties should submit a resume and/or artist cv, along with class proposals by January 31 to be considered for a spring class. Each class proposal should include title, description, length of class, class size limits, and required supplies. Classes can be one day, or multiple sessions. The Chesterton Art Center pays teachers $25 per instructional hour. Supplies are either provided by the student, or on some occasions, the Art Center. The Chesterton Art Center will review each application and respond to the applicant within 2 weeks of submission.

The Chesterton Art Center has been hosting adult and children's art classes for nearly 60 years. The facility boasts two classrooms, 2 galleries, a member's gallery, and retail space.
